

California Critical Access Hospitals

California has 34 certified Critical Access Hospitals (CAH). CAHs are small rural hospitals located in isolated areas of the state. To be CAH eligible, hospitals must, among other requirements, have 25 beds or less, be located at least 35 miles from another facility and provide 24-hour emergent services, with medical staff on-site. The CAHs preserve access to quality healthcare for residents living in the State's vast underserved rural and remote areas.
